Hiragana is one of the 3 Japanese writing systems and the very first one beginners should learn. There are 46 characters in total. Each one represents a syllable (such as a, e, u, ka, ta, etc.) which may be a vowel or a mix of consonant plus vowel, as you'll see below. Note that although characters for a, i, u, e and o are written as one letter, the sounds are "ah" "eeh" "oooh" "eh" and "oh." The consonant + vowel syllables are pronounced in the same way (kah, kee, ku, keh, ko, sa, she, soo, seh, so, etc.)
